Map of Karlsruhe and Surroundings

Attached is a map of Karlsruhe, Germany, and its surroundings. In 1715, Carl Friedrich, Margrave of Baden Durlach usw (etc.), founded a new city on the site of his hunting lodge. Appropriately, he named it Carlsruhe, Carl's resting place. In time, this new city grew rapidly. As it expanded it engulfed a number of old villages such as Rintheim, Büchig, Durlach, and Hagsfeld. The last of these is now in the industrial section of Karlsruhe. Some records of this area go back to 900 A.D.
